

Brook Green & Shepherd's Bush Area Guide

Discover the local highlights chosen by your Savills team

Welcome to Brook Green & Shepherd's Bush

Brook Green is known for its village feel and strong sense of community centred around the Green itself. Brook Green has excellent transport links, tree lined streets, quirky local shops and a fantastic array of local pubs.

Located between Hammersmith and Shepherd's Bush, the area has elegant Georgian architecture, charming cottages and rows of Victorian terraced houses on wide, tree-lined streets.

Shepherd's Bush is known for its dynamic urban culture and the heartbeat of the area is Westfield shopping centre, the largest urban shopping centre in Europe.

Brook Green, Hammersmith and Shepherd's Bush attract families and young professionals alike. Families come to the area attracted by the prospect of some of London's finest schools. Affluent young professionals are drawn to the cosmopolitan vibe and proximity to the city.

Savills Brook Green & Shepherd's Bush notebook

The Brook Green Hotel was built in 1886 and the original Brook which was piped in the 1800s still flows underneath today.

Brook Green boasts four English Heritage blue plaques including Sir Frank Short, Gustav Holst and Elizabeth Anne Finn.

The Soho House group are imminently launching a new venue in Shepherd's Bush.

The Dove is a riverside pub with, reputedly, the smallest bar in the world, frequented by Ernest Hemingway and Graham Greene. The Dove is thought to have been the venue where Scottish poet James Thomson wrote the words for Rule Britannia.

“Having lived pretty much all around London over the last five years it is definitely a place where I feel settled – there is a real sense of community here.”
