PLANNING CONSULTANCY

Savills has advised on some of the best known events and projects in the sports sector.

Savills prepared the planning strategy for the London 2012 Olympics and the subsequent delivery for all planning approvals, with a similar role replicated on the 2015 Rugby World Cup.

Savills has worked with many sports clubs in identifying new stadium and redevelopment opportunities, in addition to new training grounds. We understand the operational, funding and high profile nature of these projects.

“When considering the sale of our family home, I decided to contact Savills Sports & Entertainment team as they had been long term supporters and partners of the League Managers Association. Ian was my point of contact throughout our dealings and provided me with an extraordinary one to one service. He was on hand at all times of the day and night to give advice and recommendations during the successful sale of our house.

With their impressive reputation and quality pedigree, I was confident Savills were the right choice and I was not disappointed. They negotiated a challenging transaction, with expertise and total discretion throughout, ensuring our interests were best served at all times. I have no hesitation in recommending Ian and his Savills Sports & Entertainment team”

“

Just to thank you both for your first class service in selling my shooting ground the interest generated in such a short time was nothing short of incredible & far exceeded my expectations as did finding a buyer within the first month. I would recommend you to anyone wishing to sell a business, please feel free to use my name to this effect.”
